

Fall 11-12-2016

EVALUATING STUDENTS' ASSIGNMENTS USING A FOUR-POINT ACHIEVEMENT SCALE ADAPTED FROM THE WORK OF

Jenalisa Zummo

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.nl.edu/flmed_capstone

Part of the Educational Leadership Commons

Recommended Citation

Zummo, Jenalisa, "EVALUATING STUDENTS' ASSIGNMENTS USING A FOUR-POINT ACHIEVEMENT SCALE ADAPTED FROM THE WORK OF" (2016). FL MED Educational Leadership Capstones. 8.
https://digitalcommons.nl.edu/flmed_capstone/8

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Educational Leadership Dissertations at Digital Commons@NLU. It has been accepted for inclusion in FL MED Educational Leadership Capstones by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons@NLU. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@nl.edu.

EVALUATING STUDENTS' ASSIGNMENTS USING A FOUR-POINT ACHIEVEMENT SCALE ADAPTED FROM THE WORK OF
DR. ROBERT MARZANO

Jenalisa Zummo

Educational Leadership

Master of Education Program

Submitted in partial fulfillment of the requirements of

Master of Education

in the Foster G. McGaw Graduate School

National College of Education

National Louis University

November 12, 2016

ABSTRACT

This capstone project illustrated the implementation of standards-based grading (SBG) in a geometry college preparatory classroom, which allows teachers to report more accurately and effectively students' successes. The purpose of this study was to determine the effectiveness of using a four-point achievement scale adapted from the work of Dr. Robert Marzano. By reporting grades based on curriculum standards and content level, grades show students and parents validity in progress on meeting the standards.